"THIS IS AN ALTERNATE 1999. IT IS THE FUTURE THAT NEVER WAS... THE FUTURE THAT WILL NEVER BE... A FUTURE THAT EXISTS ONLY IN DREAMS CAUGHT ON VHS!"

VHS Dreams is a project by UK-based electronic music artist George Dervenagas. Drawing inspiration from artists such as The Prodigy, Scooter, The Chemical Brothers, Daft Punk, The KLF and others, VHS Dreams' music combines the sounds that shaped past decades up to the turn of the millennium to create an energetic mix of euphoric sounds and breakbeats.

Since 2014 he has released 3 albums and more than 20 singles under the VHS Dreams moniker. His albums reached #1 on Bandcamp's charts, and many tracks of his topped the charts on iTunes, Deezer, Apple Music and other platforms.

His debut was in 2014 with the release of "North Point Mall". The album went on to be featured on the "Vaporwave Essentials Guide" of all-time genre classics, and is still being reissued on physical formats to this day.

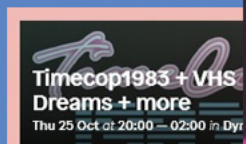

The following year he released his next LP "Trans Am". Its singles "Nightdrive" and "REDM" amassed more than 19M streams on Spotify, making VHS Dreams a household name and the album a classic example of the revivalist trends of its day.

In 2017 he yet again expanded his stylistic trademark with "Lost World". The album, an ode to 90s Ambient House, stood opposite the played-out cliches of retrowave and showcased the artist's versatile approach to his signature sound.

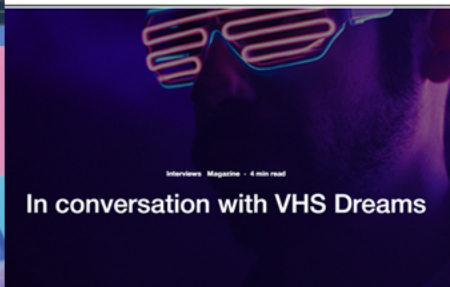

At the dawn of a new decade VHS Dreams left the sounds that defined the 2010s' retro trends behind and sought to push the nostalgia needle further forward. Reflecting upon the euphoric optimism of a bygone Y2K world he released a long string of singles embracing the Big Beat and Rave revival. Tracks such as "Enter The Matrix" and "Greece 2000" became new milestones on this ever-expanding soundscape.
